Convergent launches emergency alerts platform for schools.

Sonoma, CA (PRWeb) January 19, 2009 – Convergent Mobile, Inc. today announced that its emergency alerts platform – InstaCom™ - is live. The company already has deployed the platform for several schools and clubs utilizing the service including Montessori School and Boys & Girl’s Clubs. The platform allows school administrators to instantly contact parents, emergency contacts, faculty and even students in an emergency. The Administrator has several options for creating the alert. It can be entered via a web interface, texted from a mobile phone, or even spoken into a mobile phone. The platform will then instantly send the message to all in the database via text message, email, voice an/or page. It also translates the message to Spanish if that is the Parent’s preference.

The company expects to announce several major deployments with major school associations and chains in the first quarter.

“We are extremely excited to provide this type of solution. Not only will it generate a new revenue stream but it also offers tremendous value to both the schools and the parents. In an emergency a parent used to have to call the school or even show up looking for answers on their child’s well-being. Now we save them and the school the trouble by proactively sending information,” said Mark Porter, the company’s CEO.
